Income Distribution

The Trustee shall distribute the net income of the Trust to the designated beneficiaries. The frequency and timing of these distributions will be as specified in subsequent sections of this agreement. Unless otherwise stated, income will be distributed at least annually. Amendments can address various aspects of the trust, including but not limited to beneficiary designations, distribution provisions, and administrative terms.

Limitations

The right to revoke or amend this Trust Agreement is subject to certain limitations. If, at any time, ACME-1 becomes incapacitated and unable to manage their financial affairs, as determined by a qualified medical professional, the power to revoke or amend this Trust Agreement will be suspended. Additionally, any specific provisions within this Trust Agreement that expressly limit the Grantor's ability to revoke or amend certain aspects of the trust will be strictly enforced. All amendments must be documented in writing and attached to the original trust agreement to maintain a clear record of any changes.

DocuPal Demo, LLC, as Trustee, is obligated to provide regular reports to beneficiaries. These reports will detail the trust's assets, income, expenses, and investment performance. Beneficiaries are entitled to request and receive clarification on any matters related to the trust's administration and asset management. This ensures transparency and allows beneficiaries to stay informed about the trust's operations.

Distribution Rights

The Trust document outlines the terms and conditions governing distributions to beneficiaries. These distributions will be made according to the schedule and guidelines established within this agreement. Beneficiaries are entitled to receive distributions as specified. The Trustee has a fiduciary duty to manage trust assets prudently and make distributions in the best interests of the beneficiaries, consistent with the Trust's objectives.

Limitations on Beneficiary Actions

While beneficiaries have rights, certain limitations exist to protect the trust's assets and ensure its proper administration. Beneficiaries are restricted from taking actions that could jeopardize the trust's assets or interfere with the Trustee's management responsibilities. For example, beneficiaries cannot directly control investment decisions or compel the Trustee to make distributions outside the agreed-upon terms. These limitations are in place to maintain the integrity of the trust and safeguard its long-term sustainability for all beneficiaries.

Docupal Demo, LLC, as Trustee, will administer this Trust according to Delaware law and the terms outlined in this Agreement. ACME-1 expects the Trustee to maintain accurate records and provide transparent accounting of all Trust transactions.

- Consult with legal counsel as needed
- Conduct regular audits of the Trust's financial records
- Stay informed of any changes in applicable laws and regulations

The Trustee will promptly notify ACME-1 of any potential compliance issues.

Tax Provisions and Considerations

Tax Treatment During Grantor's Lifetime

During the lifetime of Acme, Inc (the Grantor), this Revocable Trust will generally be treated as a grantor trust for U.S. federal income tax purposes. This means that the Grantor will be considered the owner of the trust assets, and all income, deductions, and credits of the trust will be reported directly on the Grantor's income tax return. The trust itself will not be a separate taxable entity during this period.

Trustee's Tax Obligations

Docupal Demo, LLC, as the Trustee, has certain tax obligations related to the administration of the trust. These obligations include filing any necessary tax returns, such as Form 1041 (U.S. Income Tax Return for Estates and Trusts), and paying any applicable taxes on trust income. The Trustee is responsible for maintaining accurate records of all trust income, expenses, and transactions to ensure proper tax reporting.

Specific Tax Filing Requirements

The Trustee must comply with all applicable federal and state tax laws and regulations. This includes obtaining a Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) for the trust, if required, and filing all necessary tax forms in a timely manner. Specific tax filing requirements may vary depending on the nature of the trust assets and the amount of income generated by the trust. In addition to Form 1041, the Trustee may also be required to file state income tax returns and other informational returns, as applicable. The Trustee should consult with a qualified tax advisor to ensure compliance with all tax requirements.

Tax Treatment of Trust Income and Capital Gains

As a grantor trust, all income and capital gains generated by the trust assets will be taxed directly to the Grantor. This includes ordinary income, such as interest and dividends, as well as capital gains from the sale of trust assets. The Grantor will report these items on their individual income tax return as if they owned the assets directly. The trust itself will not be subject to tax on these items during the Grantor's lifetime.

Grantor's Tax Responsibilities

The Grantor is responsible for paying all taxes associated with the trust income and capital gains. This includes making estimated tax payments, if necessary, to avoid penalties for underpayment of taxes. The Grantor should consult with a qualified tax advisor to determine the appropriate tax planning strategies for their specific situation.

The parties will first attempt to settle any claim or controversy arising out of or relating to this trust through good-faith negotiation. If negotiation proves unsuccessful, the parties agree to participate in mediation administered by a mutually agreed-upon mediator before resorting to arbitration or any other legal proceedings. If mediation does not resolve the dispute, it will be settled by binding arbitration in accordance with the rules of the American Arbitration Association. The decision of the arbitrator will be final and binding on all parties involved.
